Comments:	I called the owner to make arrangements to meet, since we have his number on record. The owner is very upset about who complained and said that someone had to trespass to see what goes on inside his property and he demanded the details of the complainant, before granting us access. I explained to him that the complainant details are confidential and that the SPCA is not at liberty to share the details. I also advised that if he denies me access that I will have to obtain a warrant. He said he will discuss our conversation with his wife tonight, and that I can call him tomorrow morning. I advised that I will give him this grace. Looking at the nature of the complaint and Patricks initial findings, I can understand the owner's attitude, as it is evidently not a true complaint.
