General Report Comments: Upon arrival, I observed about 10-15 peacocks roaming freely on the property and in the road.

I saw a large coup, of which the gate was open and the peacocks can come and go as they please.

I went to a main house and was met by a man named Timothy. The peacocks belong to his father named Corrie. The peacocks is only confined in the coup during the night for their own safety. In the mornings they are open again and can roam wherever they want to.

At the house is a large 25L bucket with corn and sunflower seeds which are given to them during the evening. In the day they can fed for themselves.

There is a large white bucket inside the coup which is filled with water.

I did not observe any APA contraventions during the time of inspection, and no intervention is required.
