Comments:	I inspected the plastic and other recycling material and I asked various squatter camps if they do keep pets dogs, cats or any other animals. I did not see any animals during my inspection and I was informed they don't have pets. I was told by one of the squatter's Mr Thabo they don't keep pets because they always on the road but they have problem with rhodes(rats) specially during the night they come out eat their food and some times bites them. I asked what are they doing with this issue, I was informed they kill them if they see the rats by hitting the head with a brick and apperently they die immediately according to Thabo and others they eat the rats . They don't have any electricity, toilets and water which again its an environmental concern and causes health hazards.
