General Report Comments: Arrived at the property and hooted at the gate but no one responded. Shortly after a while, a car approached the gate with a group of 3 gentlemen. One of the guys was a bit defensive when I explained the reason for my visit. I had to calm him down and I got him to apologize for his behaviour and I convince him to allow me into the property. He said he will speak to the owner of the house to come to speak to me at the gate. The owner came to the gate and we introduced each other while he invited me in. He owns about 11 chickens on the property, water, food and shelter provided. The walls of his yard reach over 2 m at the highest point I could not make out how the chicken roam the street. He was frustrated by such allegations that he just decided to move the chickens to KZN to avoid further complaints by the end of the weekend.
