General Report Comments: Arrived at the zoo and I asked to speak with the manager. I was directed to the operational manager's office, Mr Piet Malepa who briefly discussed the matter with me who referred me to a carnivore curator named Agnes Maluleke. She then took me to the wolves' enclosure where the 3 Grey Wolves; 2 females and a male were found being irritated by flies because it was raining. One of the females named "Stella" appeared to have bruises ears from constantly scratching the fly irritation. The other wolves appeared to be in an acceptable physical condition. I asked about the last medical records of the wolves and I was told that routine check was last done on the 4th of November 2022 and the condition may have developed in between. (Medical records provided). I was told that the pacing occurs naturally by dominant males when they sense a looming danger as a form of protection for their own pack. They told me that they use Neporex™ and the Red-top fly traps to repel flies. The fly traps appeared to have been newly placed. I explained to them that the wolf "Stella" needs to be checked within 24 hours and forward us a Veterinary Report on email within 24 hours. I issued her with a written warning to get the vet to check and she agreed to do so by signing the warning. To follow up with Agnes in 24 hours.
