CHECKLISTS

General Report Comments: I went to the offices and met the receptionist. She summoned the ops. manager as well as the marketing head for me, Mr Francois Henning and Mrs Charmaine, respectively. They sat with me into their boardroom to discuss the matter and gave details that it was a showcase of a pet shampoo initiated by an NGO called Southern Africa Animal Cancer Association (SAACA). The pet calming shampoo was manufactured by Hannon Skin Products with no irritants or harsh ingredients. I asked for the owner's contact details of the chicken that they eventually gave to me after speaking to her, Michelle Du Plessis. I spoke to her over Charmaine's phone and she was quoted as saying that they own show chickens competing in the South African Poultry Championship. She also stated that she is a member of the South African Show Poultry Organization (SASPO). She assured me that the chickens are fine and are not fazed by the washing because they used to, as they get washed and groomed before any show. She said that the product was tested safe use on the chickens and also endorsed by SAACA. She said they have a farm in Magaliesburg and I'm welcome to come and inspect their poultry facilities. Location was sent to me.

There were no animals being kept at this office. I will be forwarding the complaint to the local SPCA to conduct a follow-up on the chickens.
