Follow-Up Date:
Comments:	Kruschenscke called to follow up on the way forward. I, Elani, asked her what exactly happened. She explained that they have a workshop and a house on the premises. She says the dogs are usually at home and then taken to the workshop during the day. She ecplained somebody left the gate open and one of her tenants walked outside when the dogs charged him. She changed her wording and said they are friendly and that they wouldnt bite etc. this is when the person peppersprayed the dogs. She as the owner then washed it off immediately and called the veterinarian for advice . They also advised to wash it off and then if they do not get better , to take them to the veterinarian. The dogs are fine today. I then explained to her in depth that if a dog charges domebody and they feel threatened and spray it they can say it was self defense and win the case. I also mentioned that whoever left the gate open was negligent. She then went on about the peoples right to live on the property but I told her that is a civil matter she needs to address. Case closed. Nothing to be done.
