Comments: Just a small update on Scooby & Tyson's (now Norbit) adoption.

They have been slowly integrated together since yesterday morning under our supervision. So far everything seems to be working out super well. Tyson (now Norbit) is still a little skittish with unfamiliar noises etc and will not sleep inside. He is reluctant to come in to the house so we are not forcing that. We will let him grow his confidence and trust day by day - he has already shown more confidence since his first day home.

Scooby and Norbit have become very fond of each other which is a blessing as Norbit is learning familiarities through our little Scooby Doo.

I have attached two videos of them playing - a little rough but they are young boys and full of energy. We absolutely love the two of them and thank you for the privilege to have them as part of our family .
