Comments and action taken by Inspector:

Concern re: duration of time animals are held in the shipping warehouse. IATA LAR recommends not more than 2 hours. BidAir blames the airline, the airline blames the shipping agent, the shipping agent blames the ground handling agent; none seem to know what the IATA stipulation is. Apparently this is dependent on the animal being shipped, the warehouse and the individual agent is left to decide when to check the animals in. I did speak to Inspector Rudi who in turn checked with NSPCA's Senior Inspector Arno who confirmed that it is up to individual shipments to determine the waiting time and while 8 hours is extreme, if the warehouse is accommodating to the AVI, it should not be too much of a problem. Perhaps this issue needs further clarification.
