COMMENTS

The animal presented to us was in a severely bad state and already affected by this condition for some time, where the eye already started turning necrotic.

There was signs of dehydration and emaciation, but not to an extent that it will cause the collapse of the animal at this point.

In my opinion this animal: - suffered unnecessarily for a period of time, to a point where treatment would be very difficult with specific surgery but yet poor results and therefor it was decided in the best interest of the animal, to be humanely euthanised.

Yours sincerely
