To whom it may concern.

Three chickens were brought into the vet, wet and suffering from hypothermia. One was totally collapsed and barely breathing, one semi collapsed and had labored breathing, and one was still standing with labored breathing. All three chickens were gagging with fluid on the lungs and were extremely weak, they were covered in sand and seashells. We immediately put them in front of a heater and covered them in towels until the SPCA could collect.

Thank you

Dr CJH Joubert.
