Comments:
I did not get a chance to call the owner today however I had a discussion previously with Nasheeta, I was standing outside the property as she showed me the animal in question with the skin condition . I was not granted access as her husband was not home .

I advised that they surrender the 1x animal that appears to have a severe skin condition, she stated that she's was thinking about it but will have to consult with her husband. When i tried calling last week to find out what's the POA and to also set up an appointment, Nasheeta got upset with me and was quite rude over the phone as she stated that she's at work and can't talk to me because she says "she did mention to me she will be at work ".

We need to call and find out if they keeping the animal because if they are we would need to issue a warning for veterinary treatment asap .
