SPCA Veterinary Medical Report

Date: 11 October 2025

Time: 17:02

Species: Canine

Sex: Male (intact)

Breed: Mixed breed

Presented by: SPCA Inspector

Clinical Summary:

An adult male mixed-breed dog was presented by the SPCA inspector in emaciated body condition. The patient was non-weight-bearing on the left forelimb, which was grossly swollen. Over the carpal region, there was an approximately 8 x 10 cm ulcerated lesion consistent with a chronic lick granuloma.

Diagnostic Findings:

Radiographs of the affected limb revealed no evidence of fracture. The overall presentation was consistent with a severe, untreated injury complicated by chronic infection and prolonged self-trauma.

Assessment:

- Severe chronic soft tissue injury, left forelimb
- Chronic infection and self-trauma (lick granuloma)
- Emaciation, poor general condition
- Non-weight-bearing lameness

Prognosis:

Poor. The chronicity and severity of the injury, combined with the emaciated condition and extensive soft tissue compromise, rendered the likelihood of recovery low.

Outcome:

Due to the severity of the lesion, chronic pain, and poor prognosis, humane euthanasia was performed in the best welfare interests of the animal.
