To whom it may concern,

I have today examined Marshall, a 5year old white male domestic shorthair cat belonging to Ms Simone Singery.

Marshall had been fine yesterday when the owner left him but on arriving home she found him with a red patch on his head.

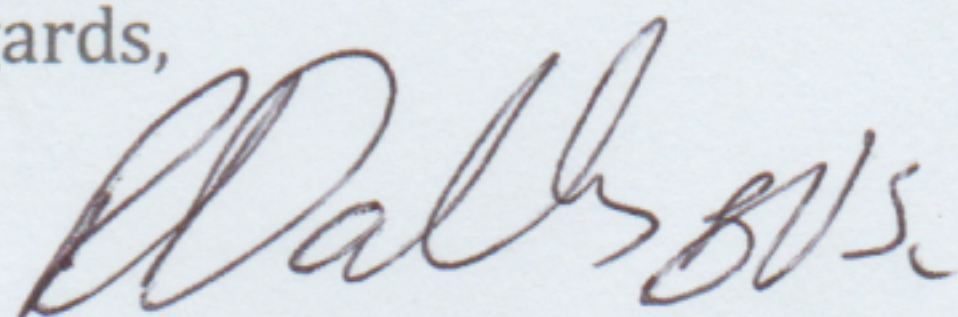

The skin on his left temple area was red with a superficial abrasion on the skin. This could be consistent with a blunt trauma such as a knock to the head.

Marshall was carefully examined and no other physical abnormalities could be found. He was neurologically normal at the time of examination.

The owner will monitor for further developments in the next 48hours.

Please contact me for further information if required.

Kind regards,

Dr Rosemary Dallas
