Comments:	I returned the dog home. The vet confirmed that the dog does not show pain and it could be that the dog was used on not putting weight on the leg during the healing process of the leg. The vet also called the owner and explained her, should she be concerned then an xray should be taken. Should we receive a call again about this dog, the complainant should just be told that the dig have an old injury which made her to be reluctant to put weight on the leg, but at times she does put weight on the leg. The dog is happy, does not show anh pain or discomfort. The case can be closed. NFA.
