Comments:	I proceeded to Hakula Matata Veterinary Clinic, where I met with Dr. Kiki Schneider. She explained the circumstances surrounding the dog that had been brought in with a head injury. Dr. Schneider confirmed that she would forward the veterinary reports to our office , along with the photographs of the dog, Rufus, who was allegedly assaulted with a hammer. The clinic did not obtain the names of the owners or the individuals who brought the dog in. They reported that it was a couple, and that the couple had claimed the dog had been injured by someone else. After leaving the clinic, I visited Nicola's residence, where I met with her husband, Stanley. He confirmed that a couple had indeed brought an injured dog to their home the previous day. According to Stanley, the couple stated that a man by the name Doris had struck the dog with a hammer. They were reluctant to provide any further details. Stanley further mentioned that Doris is the stepfather of his helper. He also informed me that the helper had said Doris fled from Happy Valley to Atlantis. Based on the limited and unverified information available, there is currently no clear indication regarding Doris's identity or exact whereabouts . Further investigation will continue tomorrow in collaboration with law enforcement.
