She feels he is in a sorry state and hears the occupants shouting at him abusively and sees the children mistreating him. She has confronted the owners, but they deny any wrong doing. There was recently a drug raid by police on the property - there is a room at the back where some apparent dealers stay - and the dog bit one of the police men. Would it be possible for someone to do a welfare check? I am in the street behind but do not have a visual on the situation. Thank you.
