Comments:	compl called in stating that the cat is still limping and she feels the cat wasn't taken to a vet inewhich I've gone through the inspectors report and was stated that the cat was at a vet and explained to the compl that the cat was taken for an x-ray and as per the vet recommendations the healing process will take some time because of the fracture and wont just heal over night, she understood and stated that she wanted to take the cat to a vet herself as she felt bad for the cat but she said that she feels a bit better knowing that the cat was seen by a vet and the owners at least made an effort to get an x-ray done.
