Upon arrival, Inspector Davids and I informed the worker that we are here to conduct the follow-up inspection which she allowed us to do.

We observed that the chicken's cages had been replaced and there was no longer protruding wires observed, there was clean water available to the chickens and the living environment appeared to be reasonably clean as well. We did not observe any compromised chickens at the time of the inspection and appeared to be in fair condition. While at the hawking site, we did not observe the worker tying up any of the chickens while there.

No contraventions were observed and the matter can be finalized.
