Good morning, Justin,
Thank you for your enquiry.

My clinic is a specialist fertility clinic and I only deal with fertility matters. We have a general clinic next door, Cape Companions Veterinary Clinic and they deal with all general veterinary cases. When we have general health concerns, I always advise clients to see to these issues either at our sister clinic next door or that they go to their own general veterinarian.

The Am Bully, Star as presented to me on 30 September 2026 by people that I did not know, on behalf of an existing client of mine, Mr Tafiek Grosch. She was supposed to be pregnant and would have apparently been on her due date. She presented with a vulvar discharge.

Upon examination, I found her to be alert but with weak hindlimbs. Her condition was moderate. Her temperature was normal and on ultrasound, I found no pups but some fluid in the uterus. Given the nature of the discharge, I concluded that she had a resorption of an earlier pregnancy and that the cervix had just started opening, and therefore was releasing the intra-uterine remnants.

I put her on Amoxycylav as a precaution and advised that her hindlimb weakness be further examined by a general vet to ascertain the cause.

I have not had any further contact with her since then.

I hope this helps you. Please let me know if I can be of further assistance to you.

Regards
Dr Rachel Shuttleworth
