CHECKLISTS

General Report Comments: Upon arrival, I called out, and the owner came outside. I introduced myself and explained the concerns that had been reported. The owner granted me access to the property.

During our discussion, the owner advised that his dog had been killed by neighbours during a housebreaking incident approximately one and a half months ago. He stated that he did not witness anyone slinging or attacking the dog but discovered the animal deceased after going outside following the incident.

I inspected the rear of the property and found no evidence of a dog being kept on the premises.

I subsequently issued the owner with a warning advising that any animal requiring veterinary attention must be provided with prompt veterinary treatment. Failure to obtain appropriate veterinary care for a sick animal constitutes an offence under the legislation protecting animals from cruelty and neglect.

The owner accepted the warning and signed to acknowledge receipt thereof.
