Comments:	Dr Jenkinson advised that without doing post mortem and also knowing the water parameters of the tank they were kept in at the business, she wont be able to give a specific cause of death. She did say that the infections the fish were suffering from were mostly related to environmental factors and stress , however that all can be caused by multiple different issues . She advised that should we return to check if theres new fish, we are to do water checks to establish and monitor the water parameters, check the food and how much food is given to the fish, and to check how long the lights are kept on in the tank.
