📋 Physical Exam

Dr. Juan Batt

Seen as Nurse Ass 1st and given Morphine and Cerenia as authorized

- seems to walk a bit better when assessed
Heart and lungs OK QBR and looking clinically healthy

Wounds not look to good, especially Lateral chest wound - seems like lots of dead space

- Might need resuture with possible drain placement?

Found bullet hole inside RH - not sure whether this was previous Sx area??

- Susp still bullet inside

Adv admiossion for DayClinixc to reassess wounds under sedation vs GA

Retook rads - previous rads not dx at all

Had all meds at home already...

Specifics:

Clinical Notes

Wound 1 - Left Lateral Chest (Gunshot Wound):

Gunshot wound present on the left lateral chest wall. The wound opening was extended to allow adequate visualisation of the projectile pathway. The tract was thoroughly flushed and cleaned, with removal of hair and debris. Exploration confirmed no communication with the thoracic cavity and no involvement of major organs. The wound was closed using Monozyl and nylon sutures, leaving approximately 15% of the wound open to allow for drainage.

Wound 2 - Left Elbow:

Lesions appear consistent with older wounds. A puncture wound is present on the lateral aspect of the elbow and appears to be in the process of healing. An additional puncture wound is noted on the medial aspect. There is thickening of the surrounding soft tissue with indentation consistent with an older wound and associated scar tissue. Conformational changes around the elbow joint are noted, likely related to previous trauma and healing.

Wound 3 - Right Hind Limb (Gluteal Region - Gunshot Wound):

Gunshot wound present over the right hind limb in the region of the gluteal muscles. The wound tract extends into the muscle layers. The area was thoroughly cleaned and flushed, with removal of hair and debris. No significant muscle tears or major structural damage identified. The wound was closed with Monozyl and nylon sutures, leaving a small portion open to allow for ongoing drainage.

Additional Observation:

An electrical device/collar was noted around the dog's neck. It was initially observed due to being relatively tight around the neck. While not causing airway obstruction or risk of suffocation, it may cause discomfort. It is unclear whether the device is a barking control collar or part of an electronic perimeter/fence system.
