To whom it may concern

Health inspection, five snakes

Carpet python x1 : excellent condition, no obvious externa parasites Adult. Oral examination clear.

White-lipped Pitvipers x3 : Female in excellent condition. Oral examination clear 1st Male in good condition, but can do with a bit of extra weight.

Oral examination clear.

2nd Male, excess mucous in mouth and slightly underweight. Also puffing throat and cranial portion of body. No purulent discharge in oral cavity, but I have concerns about this one's health and a potential respiratory infection.
No external parasites visible.

Pope's Viper x1 : Large Male, absolutely stunning and in excellent condition. Again, no visible external parasites and oral examination clear.

I would advise light daily misting of the vipers but to avoid overly wet conditions. Ambient temperatures should range between 27-30°C. Close attention should be paid to the male with a suspected respiratory infection. Raising and maintaining temperatures in the optimal range often clears these infections up. Additionally, injectable antibiotics may be indicated.
