Comments:	Zowen contacted us regarding an elderly couple seeking assistance for their dog. The husband recently suffered a heart attack, and the wife is unable to drive, which has left them without a means of transporting the dog for veterinary treatment. The dog is their beloved family pet and also plays an important role in their safety, having recently alerted them on two occasions to individuals in their yard. The couple initially enquired about surrendering the dog because they were concerned about her welfare and did not want her to suffer without medical treatment. However, their preference is for the dog to receive the necessary veterinary care and then be returned to them. I spoke with Belinda Abrahams (Media), who has kindly agreed to assist the couple. Arrangements have been made for the dog to be brought in for assessment and treatment, with the intention of reuniting her with her owners once her medical needs have been addressed.
